

2025-2026 Dependency Override Request

Last Name, First Name	Student ID Number

Reasons for a Dependency Status Override

Students who are estranged from their parents due to unusual circumstances that can be documented may qualify to be considered independent for financial aid purposes. To justify a dependency override, dysfunction in the relationship between the student and both parents must exist. Dysfunction may be the result of an abusive family environment that endangers student health or safety, abandonment, or other irreconcilable differences within the family. Other examples of conditions permitting a dependency override include but are not limited to having no contact with all surviving parents, death of parent(s), and incarceration of parent(s).

Per federal regulations, the circumstances below alone are not justifiable reasons for a dependency override:

- You (the student) do not live with your parents.
- Your parents refuse to or are financially unable to pay for college.
- Your parents do not claim you as a dependent on their income tax return.
- Your parents are not willing to provide their information on the parent section of the FAFSA or for verification.
- You do not rely on your parents for support, financially or otherwise.
- You are financially self-sufficient.

Documentation

1. A signed and dated personal statement written by you, the student, describing the circumstances of your current family situation. Include: a) a narrative of events and dates, and b) an explanation of how these events led up to the deterioration/dysfunction in the parent/child relationship with both of your parents and your estrangement from them.
2. Documentation supporting your situation (police reports, text messages, emails, letters, etc.)
3. A signed and dated statement on official letterhead from a professional third-party (e.g. counselor, physician, therapist, teacher, clergy, social worker, court officer, etc.) with first-hand knowledge who can verify the circumstances you describe in your personal statement. If you have no professional third-parties who can verify your situation, you may submit a statement from another individual. Please know that those non-professional statements may not be accepted. Be sure the third-party states their relationship status with you and how long they have been familiar with the circumstances surrounding your appeal.
